

Managing Hazardous Workplace Noise Safety Awareness Training

Overview

The purpose of this training is to help to clarify the requirements around managing noise hazards in the workplace to reduce the chance of injury. This course provides an in-depth understanding of workplace noise regulations as per the Victorian Compliance Code for Noise. It is designed to help businesses meet compliance requirements, protect worker health, and minimize noise-related risks. You will gain knowledge of noise control measures, risk assessment procedures, and how to implement effective noise management systems. While it won't make you an expert in noise management, it will provide a foundational knowledge to help you identify workplace noise hazards and collaborate effectively with noise control specialists to manage noise hazards.

Who should complete the course?

- Business owners
- Managers and supervisors
- Health and safety representatives (HSRs)
- Occupational health and safety (OHS) professionals
- Workers in industries exposed to high levels of noise (there is a light version which may be preferred for workers)
